Research Experience

Supervised Research

Department of Psychology
Augustana College

2014-2015

This project involved collaborating with Dr. Daniel Corts and three other students on a research project that assessed differences in gaze patterns when looking at angry, happy and neutral African American and Caucasian faces. My specific responsibilities included leading some group discussions, assigning tasks, gathering previous gaze-tracking research, testing technology, programming software to present stimuli, and analyzing data.

Summer Research Assistant

Department of Psychology
Augustana College

2014

I assisted Dr. Daniel Corts and Dr. Jessica Schultz in their research project studying social boundaries between college professors and their students. My specific responsibilities included listening to recordings of phone calls with professors, transcribing conversations between Dr. Schultz and professors from other colleges and universities, and organizing transcriptions.

Supervised Research

Department of Psychology
Augustana College

2013-2014

I worked with Dr. Daniel Corts and a fellow student on a research project that investigated differences in response time latencies to emotional facial expressions between individuals feeling socially anxious and feeling less socially threatened. Duties included gathering previous research, developing methods and procedures, communicating effectively with collaborators, programming software to present stimuli, organizing data, and assisting with data analysis.

Supervised Research

2012-2013

Department of Psychology

Augustana College

I worked with Dr. Daniel Corts on a research project that investigated attitudes towards acts of academic dishonesty in universities with different kinds of institutional review boards. My specific responsibilities included gathering previous research, developing methods and procedures, communicating effectively with collaborators, writing scenarios of researchers committing acts of academic dishonesty, and writing a survey.

Supervised Research

2012

Department of Psychology

Augustana College

I worked with Dr. Daniel Corts and two other students on a research project that investigated how people judge crimes committed by others when being distracted. Duties included gathering previous research, developing methods and procedures, communicating effectively with collaborators, and administering the study to participants.

Teaching Experience

Statistics Tutor

2013-2015

Department of Psychology

Augustana College

I tutored students struggling in Dr. Daniel Corts's Statistics class. The position required me to teach some students SPSS data analysis techniques, meeting with students during office hours, and explaining course material clearly and concisely.

Work Experience

Psychology Department Assistant

2013-2015

Department of Psychology

Augustana College

I worked as an assistant to the Psychology Department for Dr. Daniel Corts and Dr. Jayne Rose. Specific responsibilities included organizing data from faculty research projects, creating and organizing spreadsheets as requested by Psychology Department faculty, maintaining strict confidentiality when handling students' personal information, grading assignments and exams, organizing materials for classroom activities, and organizing student files.

Campus Involvement

Secretary

August 2013-May 2015

Psi Chi

Augustana College Chapter

I am the secretary for the Augustana Chapter of Psi Chi. The position requires me to organize notes of discussed topics, collaborate with the president and treasurer to select topics discussed in meetings, discuss topics relevant in Psychology with students interested in Psychology Club, and apply for the Model Chapter Award.
